Water Out volunteers for season six of Extreme Makeover: Home Edition

Sunday, September 28, 2008 kicks off the sixth season of Extreme Makeover: Home Edition from Rockville, MD. This special two hour episode will air on ABC at 7:00pm.

Felicia Jackson, a single mother of four, promised her dying sister she would keep her 10 nieces and nephews together and out of the foster care system, ages 4 to 18. With one promise she became the mother of 14. Working as a security guard at a mall, Felicia was unable to secure permanent housing. She was at risk of losing the children. The community heard of her fight for self sufficiency and deeded a piece of land to Felicia with a small 5 bedroom house which needed major repairs.

Ty Pennington, the host of the hit ABC show, along with his designers, Classic Homes of Maryland and hundreds of volunteers, including Water Out, rebuilt a home for Felicia Jackson and her 14 children. The Extreme Makeover: Home Edition team is joined by builders, roofers, electricians, plumbers, carpenters, painters, dry wall installers, designers, landscapers and countless other volunteers to completely renovate the home, sometimes even knock it down and start over again, in just seven days. A project this size would normally take four months. All of the materials and services are donated.

Water Out Coastal of Jackson, NJ and Water Out Metro DC/C&C Complete Services of Clinton, MD joined together on this project to dry the wet crawlspace and the construction materials, including the drywall mud. Timothy Cressy, Kelly Cressy and her daughter Devan met up with Andre Avdeev of Water Out Metro DC and donated their time and services to assist Extreme Makeover: Home Edition with this project by sending two Water Out trailers to dry the wet crawl space, stem walls, the foundation, block walls and construction materials to help keep the builders on their tight construction schedule.

The patented Water Out® drying system uses heat to dry. Once the drywall is installed in the home the trailers are used to accelerate drying the mud and any other construction materials and reduce the amount of time between drywall installation and painting. The trailers have been used on several projects to dry frames which got wet due to weather and even for temporary heating over the past few seasons. For more information about the Water Out equipment or network please contact Kelly Cressy at the corporate office at 800-848-1761 or Kelly@waterout.com.

Water Out Drying Equipment is manufactured in Jackson, NJ. There are more than 80 Water Out contractors throughout the US, Canada and Europe.

Happy Drying!
